TOPEKA, Kan., Feb. 20.-The vigilance of officers was all that saved "Slick" Slater, white, aged twenty-seven years, from lynching to-night. He will yet be lynched if he can be found. Slater assaulted seventeen-year-old Lottle Gerberick Monday evening, and was captured by Topeka officers the next day in Carbondale, twenty miles from here. The officers kept the fact of the capture quiet and placed Slater in the county jail here. This afternoon it became known that he was here, and immediately the men at the Santa Fe shops, where the girl's father, George Gerberick, is employed, decided that he should be lynched. They sent a committee to watch the jail, while they arranged details for the expected lynching. By 6 o'clock a mob of 1,000 men was around the county jail demanding the prisoner. A brigade of sturdy Santa Fe boilermakers, armed with heavy sledge hammers, stood ready to make short work of the jail in case the demands were not granted Speriff Cook told the crowd that the prisoner had been removed, and offered to let a committee search the jail. Ten men, headed by Gerberick, made a thorough search. Slater could not be found, and the pien so reported. This failed to satisfy the mob and twice they started to break in the jail doors.

It developed that early in the afternoon the sheriff, in anticipation of crouble, ordered a deputy to get Slater out of town. The deputy drove to Hoyt with Slater and entered a north-bound Rock Island train with him. It is thought here to-night that the man is now in jail at Atchison. The Eanta Fe shopmen are determined to lynch Slater when he is brought back here for trial, and to this end have appointed a large vigilance committee to be constantly on the lookout for him. The Santa Fe shopmen have a record for lynching, having strung up John Oliphant here twelve years ago for assault.

The county jail, which the lynching party visited in search of Slater, is the same in which Mrs. Nation is confined. Mrs. Natien was much alarmed at the course of the evening's events, but fear for herself did not once enter her mind apparently.

The Law Enforcement Army met at the First Christian Church to-night, and on hearing of the projected attack on the jail sent a message to Sheriff Cook, saying that 800 of the members of the organization would immediately be on the spot to help protect the jail from the fury of the mob. This evidence of loyalty on the part of her she expressed her praise of them in unmeasured terms. Mrs. Nation said that the action of the law enforcement people proved that they were just what they claimed to be-people anxious for the enforcement of law and who would not endure the thought of a lynching being perpetrated here in Topeka.

The mob decided not to lynch Montgomery until the third guilty negro is fession. This negro is being sought for by to those received by his father as Prince detectives. The vigilance committee swears when he is found the two will be lynched together. There is hardly any doubt that Montgomery will be lynched this week. In his confession King said that they had slated five of the best known young women of Dyersburg for assault, and this horrible plan is eausing the spirit of vengeance among the citizens. A number of negroes were whipped out of Dyersburg last night.

There is a large force of hands at work pumping the water out of the mines, but little progress is being made, as it fills up almost as rapidly as it is pumped out. LONDON, Feb. 20 .- A special dispatch from Pretoria says the Boers at Klip river, on Feb. 18, derailed a train containing General Kitchener's baggage. The train was preceded by another, on which the commander-in-chief was a passenger. An armored train drove off the Boers, but the latter secured the contents of the train denarrow escape from capture and it calls out newspaper warnings as to the danger to place. As Lord Kitchener is now back De Wet has again escaped from the supposed cordon. There is no further news of General French's pursuit of Comman-

Great Britain Has the Right to Buy American Mules and Horses.

LONDON, Feb. 20 .- The reported determi nation of the House of Representatives at Washington to inquire into the question whether the United States has broken the treaty of 1872 by permitting the exportation of horses, mules and other supplies to the British forces in South Africa creates more academic interest than practical concern in the government departments here. A representative of the Associated Press brought the dispatch on the subject to the notice of the Foreign Office and War Office. The officials of the latter regarded the possible effects of any future action in the United States as being of small import, as about all the mules and horses required for South Africa had already been

So far as supplies go, the official maintained that Great Britain has not secured from the United States anything that would come under the "head of military supplies." which is the wording of Article 6, in the treaty. He added: "If tinned beef and so forth are the supplies referred to, why, it is true enough. But it would seem impossible to stop the trade of the two countries in these commodities simply because we are at war with the Boers. Even if shipments from America to the Cape were interdicted to the American seller."

Another somewhat interesting feature pointed out was England's express refusal, noted in the treaty, to accept as a principle of international law the rules which Article 6 imposes on neutral governments. Had England bought arms in America it is admitted that the matter would have a different aspect; but as the specific instances mentioned in Washington deal only with what, during this campaign, is generally recognized as noncontraband, it is believed the American action will be found to have been fully within the bounds of the treaty. "As a matter of fact," said NOTE a Foreign Office official, "we have found to our cost, that contraband is what each nation chooses to make it, all treaties to the contrary notwithstanding. The reported determination of the American House of Representatives raised a question which might possibly develop much needed united action, leading the powers of the world to lay down up-to-date principles, defining specifically what twentieth century neutrality means and entails."

Later Mr. Lentz made a second onslaught of a more sensational character and brought down upon himself the whole Republican side of the House. In some remarks about a paragraph in the bill for payments for the apprehension of deserters Mr. Lentz made the startling charge that soldiers in the Philippines had buried a native alive and had then beheaded him. and he read a letter written, he said, by a soldier in the Philippines saying that he and his companions while on an expedition. were ordered to shoot every man and beast they found. Mr. Cannon, Mr. Mahon, of Pennsylvania, Mr. Grosvenor and Mr. Moody, of Massachusetts, amid warm applause, strongly rebuked Mr. Lentz. Mr. Cannon declared that were Mr. Lentz in the Philippines he would be tried by court-martial and shot; Mr. Mahon thought Mr. Lentz's remarks were revamps of the copperhead speeches of forty years ago, and Mr. Moody read the words of Lincoln that the man who encourages a soldier to desert is worse than the deserter. Mr. Sherman offered an amendment designed to prohibit hazing at the Naval Academy on penalty of dismissal. This amendment was pending on a point of order when the House adjourned.

Mr. Ailen goes out of Congress March 4 after that "thousands and millions of unborn fish were clamoring to this Congress for the opportunity of being born in Tupelo" (Mr. Allen's home.) The amendment was unan-

The question of rearranging the Hall of Representatives for the accommodation of members, in accordance with a plan agrtated some years ago to remove the seats and substitute benches something after the manner in which the House of Commons is arranged, came up on a motion made priate $115,000 "for refurnishing and rosentatives, including the removal of the individual desks of members and the reduction of the size and the reseating of the hall in a manner that will be most convenient for the sessions of the House." With this paragraph as a text Mr. Lentz attacked corruption in high and low places, charging that a judicial place had been given Mr. Lyland in return for his vote for United States senator Mr. Steele, of Indiana, made the point of order that Mr. Lentz was not speaking to the subject under consideration, but was
